

Call for Nominations: Eugene Current-Garcia Distinguished Scholar Award

ACETA solicits nominations for the 2012 Eugene Current-Garcia Award for Distinction in Literary Scholarship. This award is made annually to a living, outstanding literary scholar who is from Alabama or has worked primarily in Alabama or has focused mainly on Alabama writers.

As originally conceived, the award “recognizes and rewards Alabamians who have distinguished themselves as men or women of letters, specifically in scholarly reflection and writing on literary topics.” It also demonstrates “the respect of the scholar’s peers in the academic community and signals to the citizenry at large the lasting importance of the pursuit of knowledge and the contribution of literature to the culture.” The award includes a $5000 stipend and an original Frank Fleming bronze of the clock tower on the old Monroe County Courthouse. The 2012 Current-Garcia Award for Distinction in Literary Scholarship will be presented with its sister award, the Harper Lee Award for the 2012 Distinguished Alabama Writer, at the Alabama Writers’ Symposium in Monroeville in early May 2012. The generosity of George Landegger and the Alabama River Pulp Company makes both awards possible.

A nomination must include a curriculum vitae reflecting the course of the nominee’s scholarly career, a detailed bibliography of the nominee’s scholarly productions, and a cover letter clarifying and supporting the nominee’s qualifications for the award. Nominations may contain other letters of support from recognized scholars in the nominee’s field; they should not contain copies of actual publications.
